

ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE

TUESDAY EVENING, APRIL 17.

A JOKER PUNISHED.—The city editor of the Augusta, Ga., Chronicle published on Sunday last a plausible story telling how a double decked ocean steamer had come up the river on the spring freshet and was anchored at one of the city wharves. Hundreds of Augustans, forgetting that the day was April 1st, flocked to the docks looking for the vessel. E. B. Hook, the perpetrator of the joke, spent the day watching his victims. Towards evening a party of South Carolinians, who had come from Allendale to look upon the ocean steamer, reached the docks. Realizing that they had been sold, they seized City Editor Hook, and, tying a rope to him, dived him in the cold water of the river. Mr. Hook's journalistic methods have undergone a thorough change. Like Mr. Graderford, he now has no use for anything but facts. His ardor for practical joking has been literally damped.

A STORY OF JO JEFFERSON.—When Jefferson was playing his famous part of Rip Van Winkle during an engagement at St. Louis he one night went to the theatre for a long day's journey. The curtain rose on the third act and disclosed him deep in his twenty years' nap. Five, ten minutes elapsed, but he did not wake. The audience grew impatient. At length the gallery waxed uproarious and yelled their delight at one of them inquiring "if there was going to be nineteen years more of this sleeping business." Still Jefferson slept on and actually snored. Opening a small trapdoor beneath the stage the prompter prodded Rip from below, only to see him tumble in his pocket for an imaginary railway ticket and hear him mutter, "Going clear through, conductor!" Of course this brought down the house.
